CAPITAL SEEKING MEANS TO MEET CITY OPERATION

Refusal of Voters to Add
Three-Mill Levy Leaves

POLICE FORCE CUT

Firemen to Continue Service
Until July Budget
Is Obtained

(By the Associated Press)
OKLAHOMA CITY, March 31.—Whole measures of retrenchment were adopted today by the city government as a result of the refusal of voters Saturday to approve an additional 3-mill tax levy. The election was called after the state supreme court held that all city taxes in addition to 6 mills were illegal without special authorization by the voters.

Paring of the pay rolls of all departments was announced following a special meeting at noon of the city commissioners and mayor. Twenty-five policemen headed the discard list.

Members of the city fire department at a volunteer meeting at which every fire station in the city was represented agreed to serve without pay if necessary, during the remainder of the fiscal year.

Various boards and commissions either have been abolished or reduced to a minimum personnel.

The decision of the court left the city with only about $75,000 on which to operate until July 1, the beginning of the new fiscal year.

Street lights which were switched off Saturday night as soon as the result of the election became known burned again last night. J. P. Owen, general manager of the Oklahoma Gas and Electric company, which furnishes the lights under contract with the city has asked attorneys for an opinion as to the legality of the contract under the circumstances and expressed a willingness to continue to furnish service and take a chance on suing the city later when funds were available.

Insurance men declared today that fire and burglary insurance rates probably will be advanced if the police and fire departments are cut seriously.

KERR STRIKES AT AID FOR GERMANS

Local Legion Commander
Points to Economy Talk
On Bonus Measure

Following on the heels of numerous protests of veterans and legion officials over the country against the action of the house of representatives in voting an appropriation of $10,000,000 for the relief of suffering German children, Robert S. Kerr, local legion commander and National guard captain, expresses his views on the measure as follows:

"Come now an American Congress, just five years and four months removed from that fateful day when the beak and talons of the black eagle from beyond the Rhine were laid at the feet of him who came from the west, and votes to send ten million American dollars to alleviate a supposed condition of suffering in Germany.

Before the flesh has healed on the pitiful stubs that were formerly the right arms of Belgian boys, before the scars have gone from the bosoms of Belgian mothers whose breasts were mutilated and bruised by the cruel hand of Hessian soldiers, while one hundred thousand American mothers with eyes that never dry, whose trembling hands are outstretched towards each rising sun, dream of a stalwart form that sailed away into that sun only to find a place beneath the poppies and the site of an humble cross, and while those, three hundred thousand strong, who point with pride to the shattered limb or the sightless eye, patiently await the time when a government agency or honor and integrity will do that which a grateful people would be proud to do, a colossal dome in the Nation's capital hides from the light of the sun the faces of those who would so soon forget.

"We would not care to live in a land of selfish men who never thought of the suffering of his neighbor nor the wants of his neighbor's child, but we do believe in a sense of the eternal fitness of things, and as long as the great and numerous class of German industrialists compare favorably as to wealth per capita with any people on the earth, we believe that they should care for the suffering in their own land.

"Surely that government which in 1914 launched its campaign for

Believe Reports of Huerta's Departure From Mexico True

(By the Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, March 31.—The report that Adolfo de la Huerta, revolutionary leader, had fled from Mexico was reported in today's consular dispatches from Progresso and state department officials were inclined to believe that the story was true.

The department's dispatch from Progresso said de la Huerta had gone either to Cuba or to Payo Obispo the border line of British Honduras.

Eight submarine chasers carrying commissioners of the de la Huerta movement, are said to have left Mexico for New Orleans.

Department officials indicated that they had no reason to doubt the accuracy of the report.

SHAWNEE TOLL AT EIGHT; NEED AID

Governor Trapp Asked to Issue Proclamation Calling for Aid

(By the Associated Press)

SHAWNEE, March 31.—The toll of the storm that struck here Friday remained at 8 today with three persons suffering from serious injuries.

A survey yesterday by city authorities and real estate men placed the property loss at approximately $750,000, between 165 and 175 homes were damaged or destroyed, the check revealed.

A telegram was sent to Governor Trapp today by the local chapter of the American Red Cross asking him to "call upon the people of Oklahoma through the Associated Press to come to the assistance of the victims."

The message stated that relief work had been turned over completely to the Red Cross and that funds were needed at once. The Red Cross already has contributed $5,000 to the fund and the telegram stated that the administrative responsibility in connection with the use of the money contributed will be borne by the Red Cross from a separate fund.

The governor was asked to issue a proclamation immediately. No indication was given as to the amount of money needed. Funds should be sent to the American Red Cross Disaster Relief committee, according to the message.

"SHUT INS" PAID VISIT BY CHURCH

Communion Carried to Christian Church Members
Confined by Sickness

Sunday afternoon the elders of the First Christian church carried the Communion to those of their number who have been shut in doors for some time and unable to attend the services at the church on account of sickness, age or other confinement in doors.

There was a large audience out to hear the preaching at both the morning and evening hours. Sunday night the minister discussed the subject "What the Bible Teaches About Music." It was a thorough discussion of most of the Bible references to music, especially instrumental music in the worship of God. In addition to the Bible teaching on instrumental music, he cited every church history and encyclopedia in popular use as proof of the fact that instrumental music was used in the temple and all Jewish worship and was continued into Christianity. To the objector who says the use of instrumental music is a test of Christian fellowship, unchristianizing them, was the cause of division and not the harmless instrument.

By John T. Lewing, JR.
(Central Press Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, March 30.—IN the plans being made for the Democratic national convention to be held in New York early in July, provision is being made for a session continuing a number of days. Where Republicans are expecting their confab to be short and snappy the Democrats are looking forward to a long drawn out, much tangled affair.

The latest count shows 28 avowed or receptive aspirants for the Democratic nomination for president. No doubt there will be other active hopefuls on the stage before the convention show begins. This is the largest field ever to gather in a race for presidential nomination.

NEW OFFENSIVE NOW ON SECRETARY MELLON

WASHINGTON, March 31.—The attack in the senate on Secretary Mellon opened today with Senator McKellar, Democrat, Tennessee, introduced a resolution calling for an investigation of Mr. Mellon's legal right to hold office and met resistance from organized Republicans.

Senator Reed, Republican, Pennsylvania, informed the senate that the legal question raised by the resolution had been considered fully before Mr. Mellon accepted the cabinet position.

WASHINGTON, March 31 A new offensive in the senate against President Coolidge's cabinet directed this time against Secretary Mellon, gathered momentum while the committee investigating the internal revenue bureau resumed its examination of tax records of companies in which Secretary Mellon was interested.

Senator Keller, Democrat, Tennessee, was prepared to press for action on the resolution which he introduced Friday calling for the investigation by a special committee of Mr. Mellon's legal qualifications to act as secretary of the treasury. Senator Wadsworth, Republican, New York, blocked consideration of the proposal Friday and it went over until today under the rules. No Republican leaders, however, to oppose the adoption of the resolution.

Ada Feels First Call for Baseball Season; Fans Meet

The old baseball bug swept down on the McSwain Theatre Sunday afternoon and despite adverse baseball weather demanded attention from a number of fans who had assembled for the purpose of officially launching the baseball season in Ada.

Scores of fans, who answered the first summons of the season, gloriied for an hour or so over the prospects of the season and laid definite plans for starting Ada off on the right step for the season.

A. O. Green, druggist and baseball promoter, was again named by local fans to head the local club as manager and will continue his connections in that capacity. Green's election to management was made by acclamation.

Sinclair Indicted

(By the Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, March 31.—Harry F. Sinclair, lessee of Teapot Dome, was indicted by a federal grand jury today on contempt charges growing out of his refusal to testify before the senate oil committee.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—The grand jury considering the contempt case of Harry F. Sinclair expires today but the government law officers were confident it would be able to make action before passing out of existence. The case growing out of the oil magnate's refusal to testify further before the senate investigating committee was presented to the grand jury and witnesses were heard before it adjourned Friday for the week-end.

The oil committee was in recess today having put off until tomorrow its plans for delving further into the financing of the $1,600,000 deficit incurred by the Republican national committee in the 1920 campaign.

Marine War Losses Paid

LONDON.—About $920,000,000 was paid to shipping companies by the admiralty, war office and ministry of shipping from August, 1914 to March, 1921, in respect of total losses and insurance of vessels owing to war risk. These figures were given out recently by the Board of Trade.

NATION'S WEALTH ON INCREASE FOR YEAR

WASHINGTON, March 31.—The wealth of the nation is $320,803,862,000, more than half of which is real property and improvements. The per capita wealth is $2,918.

Statistics of the country's wealth as of December 31, 1922, issued today by the census bureau revealed that the total wealth increased 72.2 per cent and per capita wealth 49.6 per cent in the 10 years from 1912. All classes of property increased in value in the decade except livestock which decreased 6.9 per cent to $5,807,104,000. The increase in money values of other classes of property, the census bureau officials said, was due to a large extent to the rise in prices in recent years and so far as that is the case they did not represent corresponding increases in the quantity of wealth.

The wealth of Oklahoma was estimated at $3,993,524,000 an increase of 29.5 per cent over the 1912 figures. The per capita wealth of the state was placed at $1,864, an increase of 12 per cent.

Freezing Temperature Prevails in Oklahoma For Last Day of March

(By the Associated Press)

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 31.—A recurrence of freezing temperatures in Oklahoma tonight will be winter's parting fling in the way of an April fool joke, it was predicted today by the United States weather bureau. Temperatures between 26 and 32 degrees were forecast for tonight.

Fruit in the central and southern parts of the state will not suffer severe damage as a result of the cold weather, in the opinion of John A. Whitehurst, president of the state board of agriculture. In the northern section, however, some damage was expected to result from the freeze this morning.

PACIFIST CENTER OF SCHOOL CLASH

Patriotic Meeting Follows
Fight Refusal Talk of Student Group

(By the Associated Press)

CHICAGO, March 31.—Isadore Spector, known as a liberal on Northwestern university campus, but who says he is not a pacifist, was manhandled by several students in the class of business law today and told to get off the campus. Spector attempted to make a speech yesterday at a patriotic meeting held jointly by the university and Evanston post of the American Legion at Hatten gymnasium but was prevented. Although pushed by the students he was not injured and so far as learned he did not leave the campus.

Patriotism blazed up with wartime fervor yesterday in opposition to the pacifists who have attempted to obtain a foothold in the institution.

"The attitude of Northwestern university is that we should risk our all in the defense of our nation," Walter Dill Scott, president of the institution, told more than 3,000 students of the university. President Scott wears a distinguished service cross. The "38" students of the university who pledged themselves recently never to fight heard themselves exoriated, ridiculed and held up to public scorn.

The throng sang patriotic hymns cheered the Stars and Stripes, and pledged itself to maintain the "ragged march of civilization towards the goal of peace."

NOT TO HALT ON DAUGHERTY PROBE

Investigators to Continue Despite Daugherty's retirement from Office

WASHINGTON, March 31.—The senate Daugherty investigating committee decided today to continue its inquiry despite Mr. Daugherty's retirement to private life.

At the same time members announced they intended to hold Gaston B. Means, former department of justice investigator, in attendance in spite of the issuance today of a bench warrant by a federal district court to return him there to answer a charge of conspiracy.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—Two courses lay before the Daugherty investigating committee when it met behind closed doors today—preparation for a quick windup now that the central figure of the inquiry is out of office, or switch attention from its conduct of relationship to an examination of war frauds, antitrust and other phases of the work of the department of justice.

The latter course appeared last night to be favored by most of the committee members. Senator Wheeler, Democrat, Montana, prosecutor of the inquiry, expressed this view, explaining that the "object would be to clear up the situation for the new attorney general."

President Coolidge meanwhile went forward with a survey of the situation with a view to selecting a new attorney general. It is understood that he has not settled upon any individual among the numerous names suggested for the appointment.

Wilson of Oklahoma to be

In Politics

(By the Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, March 31.—Demands for the removal of Theodore Roosevelt, assistant secretary of the navy, was renewed in the senate today by Senator Dill, Democrat, Washington.

The resolution which Senator Dill introduced charges Mr. Roosevelt with having been a director in the Sinclair Oil Co., previous to entering government service, and stressed that he ordered marines to remove oil claimants from the Teapot Dome reserves.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—A resolution calling for the resignation of Theodore Roosevelt as assistant secretary of the navy because of his connection with the oil leasing program was drawn up today by Senator Dill, Washington, Democratic member of the oil committee.

Failure of subpoena serves to locate William Boyce Thompson, former chairman of the Republican national committee, was announced today in a report to the senate oil committee by the senate sergeant at arms.

Thompson was among the witnesses listed to appear this week in reward to stories of campaign contributions by oil interests. His home is in New York.

George White of Ohio, former chairman of the Democratic national committee who also is under subpoena was granted a week's delay on a plea of important business.

A subpoena for Fred Upham of Chicago, treasurer of the Republican national committee, may be cancelled. Committee members are disposed to accept his public statement that he has no information on the subject under investigation.

The committee will resume its hearings tomorrow. R. H. Wilson, once candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor of Oklahoma, on the stand, with W. L. Kistler, an oil promoter of Tulsa, Mr. Wilson is to be questioned regarding connection of prominent oil men with state and national politics.

OHIO VALLEY IN PATH OF FLOODS

Swollen Streams Threaten to Inundate Many Towns;
Pittsburgh Hit

(By the Associated Press)

PITTSBURGH, Penn., March 31.—Flood waters of the Monongahela and Allegheny rivers swollen by rains and melted snow from the mountain regions of western Pennsylvania and West Virginia, were sweeping eastward through the Ohio valley today.

A stage of 14 feet was expected by noon at Wheeling which would submerge the district fronting the river.

Streets in most of the Pittsburgh district bordering the river were inundated, some to a depth of 6 to 7 feet yesterday when both rivers left their channels. A stage of 29.2 feet, 7 feet above flood stage, was recorded, the highest in 11 years. Much damage was done to industrial plants and many operations will be suspended until repairs can be made. The flood waters were receding today.

Railroad transportation was greatly affected but service is being slowly restored.

Eight deaths in western Pennsylvania were attributed to the flood. Five others occurred at Kitzmiller, Maryland, when an entire family was swept down the Potomac river.

The Morgans were alone in the automobile. Morgan was employed as a hoist man at the K. B. M. zinc mine at Cardin.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

LOVE NOT THE WORLD, neither the things that are in the world. If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him.—1 John 2:15.

THE PURCHASE OF ALASKA.

Today marks the fifty-seventh anniversary of the purchase of Alaska by the United States. It is said that the real reason for the purchase was to pay Russia for support during the civil war when France and England were thought to be on the point of recognizing the Confederacy. Russia was a loyal friend to the Union and some have said that it was her influence that prevented the recognition and that the presence of a Russian fleet in American waters to back up the Russian stand turned the scales against the Confederacy. At all events some way had to found to pay Russia and as Alaska was worthless to that country it was agreed that the United States should pay Russia the sum of $7,200,000 and get Alaska in the bargain.

The government was severely criticized by the press and public since no one could see how Alaska could ever be of value to the United States. However, time has proved that this country made a remarkably good trade. With the seal herds, fisheries, mines and other resources "Uncle Sam's Ice Chest" has assumed an importance undreamed of in the days of Secretary Seward who negotiated the treaty and as yet these natural resources have been scarcely touched.

Alaska bids fair to become a thriving territory in time and had President Harding lived to make use of the information he gained on his trip it is probable that the new era would have dawned much more quickly than it will now.

The lack of interest in important public matters was well illustrated Saturday in the special election held in Oklahoma City on the question authorizing an additional three mill tax with which to run the city government. We do not presume to judge whether the levy was needed or not; the striking point being that only about one-fourth of the voters registered their judgment one way or the other. This frequently happens and then people wonder why public business is not carried on more efficiently. When the people are fully alive to their own interest and how public business is conducted they generally get results.

The Tulsa city builders have always been boosters first and politicians afterwards. A case in point occurred a few days ago when the Republican campaign committee issued a circular charging that under the Democratic administration building operations in the city had declined. Immediately the real estate organization of the city met and issued a refutation of the charge. Doubtless a number of the real estate men were Republicans but they would not stand for any party to charge that the city was on the decline no matter who was in power.

Tomorrow will be election day in Ada and although only two contests are to be settled, every voter should take time to express his or her choice. People too often are content to let public business drift along, since what is everybody's business is nobody's business. We are all interested in the conduct of our city government and administration of our schools, hence one and all should turn out sometime between 6 a. m. and 7 p. m. and vote.

So far as the records show, Izaak Walton and the Izaak Walton league of Oklahoma are in no wise related to Jack Walton and his league, the first named gentleman having been an enthusiastic advocate of the art of fishing and the league that bears his name being made up of devotees of this sport.

Now that radio has become an every day reality the next step is to transmit power without wires. Nikola Tesla, one of the electrical wizards of the age, says he has already demonstrated that this can be done and he predicts that in the near future this system will be in general use. Sounds a little far fetched but no more so than hundreds of others we have seen come to pass in recent years.

According to a bulletin issued by the Seminole County Petroleum Bureau, there are now 44 producing wells in the Wewoka pool and the daily average production for the week ending March 25 was 8,461 barrels. That sounds like business and means that Wewoka will soon be spreading over more of the map than hitherto.

March is going out very much as it came in, like neither the lion nor the lamb but rather between the two extremes. The lion has held sway most of the month, however.

If one wants a book that will keep him occupied for sometime to come we can recommend the transcript of proceedings in the Walton case. It contains 2,051 pages.

"BEN, BEN, BROTHER BEN, SHOT AT A CROW AND HIT A HEN!"

The Forum of the Press

The Guiding Hand

A monkey almost strangled Cromwell to death when he was a baby in the cradle. For a few moments, until he was discovered and driven away, that ape held the destiny of nations in his hairy paws. How do you explain it?

Important events of the world and our own lives often hinge on such petty little details that an observer is baffled to explain.

Napoleon might have won Waterloo if a rain had not mired his artillery.

Mohammed, pursued by enemies, hid in a cave in Mount Shur. A spider promptly spun a web across the cave's entrance. Seeing the web, the pursuers reasoned that no one could have entered without breaking the silken threads. They passed on, Mohammed escaped. That spider determined the religious belief of billions of people later. The same cave-spiderweb story, by the way, is told about other historical characters—borrowed from Mohammed.

If Cleopatra's nose had been shorter, the condition of the world would have been different. So wrote Pascal in his epigrams. Her beauty made her one of the most powerful women that ever lived.

A small boy in church, watched a chandelier swaying back and forth conceived the idea of the pendulum. Luther might have been a lawyer if a terrific rainstorm had not prevented him from keeping an appointment with a friend.

Giotto, one of the early Florentine painters, might have continued a shepherd boy if a sheep drawn by him on a stone had not happened to attract the attention of a great artist, Cimabue, who fired Giotto with ambition.

Nearly everybody believes in luck to some extent. If they didn't games of chance like cards would be entirely displaced by games of skill like chess. Ambition is kept alive and nurtured by hope. And hope is lured on by a belief, whether admitted or denied, that luck will bring opportunity and fortune.

Luck, after all, is simply the popular way of expressing success or failure under the scientific laws of chance or probabilities. These laws are mathematical. Gamblers use them. Insurance rates are based on them.

But most of us cannot accept chance as a satisfactory explanation of such crucial incidents as baby Cromwell escaping death at the monkey's hands. Fundamentally, most of us have faith that the guiding hand of Providence is back of it all.—Tulsa Tribune.

Education in Nuevo Leon Enjoys Ennoble Record

MONTEREY, Mexico, Fifty new schools have been established in the state of Nuevo Leon during the last 12 months, and are being maintained with funds from the Ministry of Education of the Federal government. All of these educational centers devote their efforts to teaching the elementary basis of knowledge in the rural districts.

Nuevo Leon is the most highly cultured entity of the Mexican federation, as there is only six per cent of the population that does not know how to read and write, whereas there are other territories such as the state of Michoacan, in the central part of the country, where figures show the number of ill-alphabets to be 36 per cent, with only four per cent of educated folks.

THE STEADFAST HEART

AT AMERICAN THEATRE

An interesting event of the film season will be the showing of the much talked of picture, "The Steadfast Heart," from Clarence Budington Kelland's story of the same name at the American Theatre for two days, beginning today.

The Distinctive Picture Corporation, producers of the film, have assembled a remarkable group of actors for this picture including, as it does, Marguerite Courtot, Joseph Striker, Joey Dewey, Miriam Battista, William B. Mack, Hugh Huntley, Mary Alden, Sherry Eansley, Jerry Devine and many others.

Marguerite Courtot will be remembered for her excellent work in "Down to the Sea in Ships." Joseph Striker is regarded as one of the handsomest young men in pictures. Hugh Huntley is one of the most popular of all screen actors. His most recent appearance was in "The Famous Mrs. Fair." William B. Mack has long been recognized as one of America's very greatest actors, his career dating back to the days of the famous Daily Stock Company. Mary Alden had one of the principal roles in "The Birth of a Nation."

Joey Dewey, Sherry Tansey, Jerry Devine and Miriam Battista make up a quartette of the exceedingly well-known juvenile actors. Every one of them has been starred at some time or another and all have appeared in great productions.

The story of "The Steadfast Heart," dealing with a struggle against criminal environment, is a thoroughly inspiring one. It has innumerable dramatic situations, considerable comedy and many human touches, according to advice from those who have seen it.

PARENT-TEACHER ASSOCIATION DELEGATE REPORTS MEETING

The state meeting of the Parent-Teachers association of Oklahoma held at Perry last week gave marked indications of a fuller understanding of the aims and purposes of the organization than the meeting heretofore and showed growth in membership and enthusiasm.

More than 100 were in attendance and the delegates from Ada are praising the people of Perry very highly for their royal entertainment while there.

Our Parent-Teachers association made overtures to the convention for the 1925 convention to be held here. Guthrie was also interested in the next meeting. The time and place will be in the hands of a committee to be decided upon later.

The Chamber of Commerce, schools and the members of the different ward organizations sent a beautiful floral offering to the convention—a huge basket filled with carnations and ferns, which received many compliments.

There were many fine addresses given during the convention and some of the problems, given by Supt. Claxton of Tulsa schools was an outstanding feature.

The delegates from Ada to attend and who returned Saturday night were: Miss Annie Lee Bolton, Willard school; Mrs. Clyde Meaders, high school; Mrs. Gray, Hays school and Mrs. Clark, Washington school.

Mrs. Braly, state recording secretary was taken ill in Oklahoma City enroute to Perry and was unable to attend. Mrs. Meaders served in her place.

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED BY EIGHTH DISTRICT FEDERATED

From a whistling station twenty-five years ago to a city of ten thousand, tells the story of Ada's progress.

We are not familiar with the names of those pioneers who honored our town and who returned to the bustle of life of this great state, but we are assured that they built better than they knew. Your fame has traveled for and the women of this convention are proud of your progress.

We are honored to be your guests. Ada is indeed a city set upon a hill. Its light cannot be hid. This is true in both a material and ideal way. Your institutions of learning are well known.

We wish to thank all for the numerous courtesies extended us; the college faculty; the student body which has been a factor in making a success of our convention. We thank the citizens of Ada individually and collectively for the royal welcome and entertainment extended us. We thank the Lions and Fortnightly clubs for the beautiful luncheon given us and the Baptist ladies who so efficiently served it.

We wish to express the liveliest congratulations to the various clubs of Ada to the officers and chairmen of the state and district federation and to all who have so largely contributed to the pleasure and the success of the program. And to our efficient president, Mrs. W. C. Bolling, and the members of the Fortnightly club, we say thank you! to the Ada Evening News which run a full report of our federation, and to other papers of the town which gave publicity to our work. We like you!

And the we part again

Each different plan we view, We carry home fond memories And breathe "May God Bless You."

Committee on resolutions: Mrs. H. M. Carr, Mrs. Harry Kessler and Mrs. Miller.

GOOD EVENING!

The Young Women's Bible Class at the American Theatre had a total of thirty-eight present yesterday, including visitors. The class has been growing steadily since its organization the first of March and was gratified at the excellent showing made yesterday. In addition to the regular program for the morning, the class enjoyed a visit from the Training School Orchestra which favored them with two numbers well rendered under the direction of Brollow Coffman.

This class feels that there is a distinct field of service for them in their endeavor to enlist those not already affiliated with some Sunday school. It is this field and this field alone they desire to work and this for one purpose only—to cultivate a study of the Bible and to be used as servants in the salvation of the lost. It is the ambition of the class to grow in useful and to identify itself with ever moment that makes for a better city, socially, morally and spiritually. The class hopes to become large enough to be a real value to the community as a whole and to this end extends a cordial invitation to all young ladies not already identified with some Sunday school class to become a member of this one.

world dominion with a battle cry of "Got Mit Uns," that nation that taught its sons that the Prussian eagle was the king of beasts, and who lulled its people to quiet repose with these words: "Dear Fatherland no fear be thine," firm stands the guard along the German Rhine," and which today possesses the most fertile fields, untouched by war and unscratched by foreign heel, which owns and controls the coal and iron supply, of Continental Europe, can care for those of its sons who cannot care for themselves.

"The subsidized press of this country stands shoulder to shoulder in a united effort to prevent the passage of any adjusted compensation legislation saying that to do so would prevent tax reduction. Yet this same press sits supinely while a National Congress throws this political bribe to two million German vote in America, and they open not their mouths.

"They would watch an American ship with the Stars and Stripes at its mast, sail the same seas that hid the ugly forms of the German submarines from whose torpedo shutes were fired the shot that sank the Lusitania and that great fleet of allied ships as numberless as the years, that pass, carry American gold to the people of a Nation whose condition is nearly, if not as good as that of twenty-five percent of the inhabitants of our own country. And why? Let him who knows the psychology of political success and the effect during a presidential election year of a solid block of two million votes answer why.

Suffice to say that with all the suffering that exists among the people in the United States, with the desire on the part of a great majority of American people for an adequate adjusted compensation measure, not inconsistent with an economic reduction of taxation, an expenditure of ten million dollars in a country four thousand miles from home, among a people who neither need our aid nor appreciate our help, should be beyond the scope of legislative omnipotence.

REVOLVER GETS ACTION WHERE MUSIC FAILS

In filming "The Man from Brodway's," a Vitagraph special production, which will be shown at the McSwain theatre today, David Smith the director, was faced with a difficult problem in making close-ups of the various actors who participate in a severe battle. Time after time he tried to get the players to register the tense, strained expression they showed during the progress of the fight.

Incidental music played by a four-piece special orchestra on the set failed to bring the desired temperamental reaction on the actors. Director Smith tried hard and worked with the players to get the correct close-ups. He pleaded and explained. While he managed to obtain the proper degree of emotion on the faces of the players, he felt there was still something lacking. Music of every variety was tried but without success. Then he tried something else.

Taking the close-ups over again, he had a revolver fired unexpectedly. Instantly there was a tenseness and a resistance to the roar of the gun on the fact of the players which had been missing in previous attempts. Finding the plan so successful, Director Smith ordered that several heavy caliber revolvers and pistols be fired during the taking of the remainder of the close-ups.

"The Man from Brodway's" is based upon the famous novel of the same name by George Barr McCutcheon. In it appears one of the finest casts of screen players ever assembled. J. Warren Kerrigan plays the leading role of the Man from Brodway's. In the cast are also Alice Calhoun, Miss DuPont, Wanda Hawley, Pat O'Malley and Kathleen Key.

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I.—Solomon Birkus, veteran scout and interpreter, and his young companion, Jack Irons, passing through Horse Valley, New York, in September, 1768, to warn settlers of an Indian uprising, rescue from a band of redskins the wife and daughter of Colonel Hare of England. Jack and Margaret fall in love. On reaching Fort Stanwix Colonel Hare says both are too young to marry, but that if they are of the same mind after one year he will ask Jack to come to London. The Hare family sail for England, and the Irons family move to Albany.

CHAPTER II.—Unrest grows in the colonies because of the oppressive measures of the English government. Solomon and Jack visit Boston and witness a fight between a mob and a squad of British soldiers led by Captain Preston, a friend of Solomon's. Later they return to Boston to testify in Preston's behalf.

CHAPTER III.—In November, 1770, Jack goes to Philadelphia and works in Benjamin Franklin's printing plant. Nearly three years later Margaret writes him from London reminding him that her youth is passing and saying that she has appealed to Doctor Franklin, who has received a letter from Washington to be carried across the ocean, and Jack sails with him.

CHAPTER IV.—Arriving in England, Birkus is arrested, but Jack has the letter and proceeds to London.

CHAPTER V.—Jack delivers the papers to Franklin in London. Birkus is released and joins them in the great city.

CHAPTER VI.—Jack and Margaret meet and are more in love than ever, but Colonel Hare is not eager for the marriage.

"Suddenly Solomon arrived. Of course where Solomon is, one would expect a riot. They were not wanting. I had not tried to prepare him for the ordeal. Solomon is bound to be himself wherever he is, and why not? There is no better man living. 'You're as purty as a golden robin,' he said to Margaret, shaking her hand in his big one.

"He was not so much put out as I thought he would be. I never saw a gentler man with women. As hard as iron in a fight, there has always been a curious vein of chivalry in the old scout. He stood and joked with the girl in his old fashion, and set us all laughing. Margaret and her mother enjoyed his talk and spoke of it, often, after that.

"I dressed and went to dine with the Hares that evening. They lived in a large house on a fashionable 'road' in certain of the streets were called. It was a typical upper class, English home. There were many fine old things in it but no bright colors, nothing to dazzle or astonish you like the wooden Indian in war paint and feathers and the stuffed bear and high colored rugs in the parlor of Mr. Gosport in Philadelphia. Every piece of furniture was like the quiet, still-footed servants who came and went making the smallest possible demand upon your attention.

"I was shown into the library where Sir Benjamin sat alone reading a newspaper. He greeted me politely. 'The news is disquieting,' he said presently. 'What have you to tell us of the situation in America?'

"It is critical," I answered. "It can be mended, however, if the government will act promptly."

"What should it do?" "Make concessions, sir, stop shipping tea for a time. Don't try to force an export with a duty on it. I think the government should not shake the mailed fist at us."

"But think of the violence and the destruction of property!" "All that will abate and disappear if the cause is removed. We, who keep our affection for England, have done our best to hold the passions of the people in check, but we get no help from this side of the ocean."

"Sir Benjamin sat thoughtfully feeling his silvered mustache. He had grown stouter and fuller-faced since we had parted in Albany when he had looked like a prosperous, well-bred merchant in military dress and had been limbered and soiled by knocking about in the bush. Now he wore a white wig and ruffles and looked as dignified as a Tory magistrate.

"In the moment of silence I mustered up my courage and spoke out. 'Sir Benjamin,' I said, 'I have come to claim your daughter under the promise you gave me at Fort Stanwix. I have not ceased to love her and if she continues to love me I am sure that our wishes will have your favor and blessing.'

"I have not forgotten the promise," he said. "But America has changed. It is likely to be a hotbed of rebellion—perhaps even the scene of a bloody war. I must consider my daughter's happiness."

"Conditions in America, sir, are not so bad as you take them to be," I assured him.

"I hope you are right," he answered. "I am told that the whole matter rests with your Doctor Franklin. If we are to go on from bad to worse he will be responsible."

"If it rests with him, I can assure you, sir, that our troubles will end," I said, looking only at the surface of the matter and speaking confidently.

out of the bottomless pit of my inexperience as the young are like to do. "I believe you are right," he declared and went on with a smile. "Now, my young friend, the girl has a notion that she loves you. I am aware of that—so are you, I happen to know. Through Doctor Franklin's influence we have allowed her to receive your letters and to answer them. I have no doubt of your sincerity, or hers, but I did not foresee what has come to pass. She is our only child and you can scarcely blame me if I balk at a marriage which promises to turn her away from us and fill our family with dissension."

"May we not respect each other and disagree in politics?" I asked.

"In politics, yes, but not in war. I begin to see danger of war and that is full of the bitterness of death. If Doctor Franklin will do what he can to re-establish loyalty and order in the colonies my fear will be removed and I shall welcome you to my family."

"I began to show a glint of intelligence and said: 'If the ministers will cooperate it will not be difficult.' 'The ministers will do anything it is in their power to do.'

"Then the timely entrance of Margaret and her mother. 'I suppose that I shall shock my father but I cannot help it,' said the girl as she kissed me.

"You may be sure that I had my part in that game. She stood beside me, her arm around my waist and mine around her shoulders.

"Father, can you blame me for loving this big, splendid hero who saved us from the Indians and the bandits? It is unlike you to be such a hardened wretch. But for him you would have neither wife nor daughter."

"She put it on thick but I held my peace as I have done many a time in the presence of a woman's cunning. Anyhow, she is apt to believe herself and in a matter of the heart can find her way through difficulties which would appall a man.

"Keep yourself in bounds, my daughter," her father answered. 'I know his merits and should like to see you married and hope to, but I must ask you to be patient until you can go to a loyal colony with your husband."

"It was a pleasant dinner through which they kept me telling of my adventures in the bush. Save the immediate family only Mrs. Biggars, a sister of Lady Hare, and a young nephew of Sir Benjamin were at the table."

CHAPTER VII

The Dawn. Franklin, whom Jack saw the next day, liked not the attitude of the baronet.

"He is one of the king's men on the big chess board," said the old philosopher. "All that he said to you has the sound of strategy. I have reason to believe that they are trying to tow us into port and Margaret is only one of many ropes. Hare's attitude is not that of an honest man."

Only three days before the philosopher had had a talk with North at the urgent request of Howe, who, to his credit, was eager for reconciliation. The king's friend and minister was contemptuous.

"I am quite indifferent to war," he had cynically declared at last. "The confiscations it would produce will provide for many of our friends."

It was an astonishing bit of frankness. "I take this opportunity of assuring your lordship that for all the property you seize or destroy in America, you will pay to the last farthing," said Franklin.

This treatment was like that he had received from other members of the government since the unfortunate publication of the Hutchinson-Rogers and Oliver letters. They seemed to entertain the notion that he had forfeited the respect due a gentleman.

A few days after Franklin had given air to his suspicion that the government party would try to tow him into port three stout British ships had broken their cables on him. An invitation not likely to be received by one who had really forfeited the respect of gentlemen was in his hands. The shrewd philosopher did not think twice about it. He knew that here was the first step in a change of tactics. He could not properly decline to accept it and so he went to dine and spend the night with a most distinguished company at the country seat of Lord Howe.

Some of the best people were there—Lord and Lady Cathcart, Lord and Lady Hyde, Lord and Lady Dartmouth, Sir William Erskine, Sir Henry Clinton, Sir James Baird, Sir Benjamin Hare and their ladies were also present. Doctor Franklin said that the punch was calculated to promote cheerfulness and high sentiment. As was the custom at like functions, the ladies sat together at one end of the table, Franklin being seated at the right of Lady Howe, who was most gracious and entertaining. The first toast was to the venerable philosopher.

The dinner over, Lady Howe conducted Doctor Franklin to the library, where she asked him to sit down. There were no other persons in the room. She sat near him and began to speak of the misfortunes of the colony of Massachusetts Bay.

Lord Howe joined them in a moment. He was most polite.

"I am sensible of the fact that you have been mistreated by the ministry," he said. "I have not approved of their conduct. I am unconnected with those men save through personal friendships. My zeal for the public welfare is my only excuse for asking you to open your mind. The plan is now to send a commission to the colonies, as you have urged."

Then said Lady Howe: "I wish, my brother Franklin, that you were to be sent thither. I should like that much better than General Howe's going to command the army there."

A rather tense moment followed. Franklin broke its silence by saying in a gentle tone:

"I think, madame, they should provide the general with more honorable employment. I beg that your ladyship will not misjudge me. I am not capable of taking an office from this government while it is acting with so much hostility toward my country."

"The ministers have the opinion that you can compose the situation if you will," Lord Howe declared. "Many of us have unbounded faith in your ability. I would not think of trying to influence your judgment by a selfish motive, but certainly you may, with reason, expect any reward which it is in the power of the government to bestow."

Then came an answer which should live in history, as one of the great credits of human nature, and all men, especially those of English blood, should feel a certain pride in it. The answer was:

"Your lordship, I am not looking for rewards, but only for justice."

"Let us try to agree as to what is the justice of the matter," Howe answered. "Will you not draft a plan on which you would be willing to cooperate?"

"That I will be glad to do."

Persisting in his misjudgment, Howe suggested: "As you have friends here and constituents in America to keep well with, perhaps it would better not be in your handwriting. Send it to Lady Howe and she will copy it and return the original."

Wolves Chase Alsace Skiers

COLMAR, Alsace.—A company of ski-runners on the Vosges Mountains was recently pursued by a pack of wolves. The men craved down a mountain-side and managed to find shelter in a cabin, which the wolves surrounded.

A dog which was with the ski-runners was eaten by the wolves and the animals finally abandoned their manhunt. Only the deep snow which made going difficult for the wolves, and was favorable to the men on skis, enabled the latter to escape.

Kerry Cow Makes Milk Record

(By the Associated Press) LONDON.—Gort Curly, 9th, a Kerry cow, has produced 11,933 pounds of milk in 46 weeks. This is more than 13 times her own weight. In the spring of 1921 a Kerry produced 11,396 pounds, which was said at that time to be a world's record for a cow of her size.

OIL NEWS

The McDougal well in section 20-6n-7e, just across the river in Seminole county, got the gas sand at 2660 feet Sunday afternoon and is making three million feet with the sand only touched. Some oil is in the gas. It will be drilled in within two or three days, as soon as the hole can be put in shape.

Mr. McDougal is on the ground today in conference with the officials of the Bison Development company, an Ada drilling company, who drilled the hole.

C. J. Skirvin, head of the development company, today said the well is equally as good if not better than the Slick well which got the sand at 2212 feet in section 25-6-6.

The 6-inch casing was set at 2500 feet and the rest of the hole is open.

This makes the second large gas-gas in that part of the Ada oil and gas fields, being in the southern end of Seminole county and near the city of Sasakwa. It extends the gas area more than a mile to the east.

The Hughes well in section 28-4-7, seven miles east of Ada, appears to be a paying gasser at 500 feet. Without proper equipment, a test shows one and a half million cubic feet production a day. However, with the cavings that are in the hole it is impossible to determine the exact size, but those in charge say it will easily make three million feet a day.

This is the strongest flow of gas for the depth yet encountered in the county. Just what sand it is the operators do not attempt to say. It is about the depth of the Steedman sand, but the Steedman sand carried oil and no gas.

The gas is encouraging and Mr. Hughes and his associates feel that the lower sands will bear oil in large quantities.

The road is just south of the Ada-Steedman road, about two miles beyond the gravelled road.

Shipbuilding Active in Latvia

(By the Associated Press)

RIGA, March 30.—The old imperial naval yards in Riga and Libau have been working in full blast this winter, turning out steam and sailing vessels for next summer, which promises to be the busiest for the shipping industry since Latvia became a republic.

The specialty of the Latvian shipbuilding industry is construction of wooden ships, as timber costs less here than in any other Baltic country. Latvia's merchant fleet consists of 20 steamers, 62 sailing vessels and nine motor boats.

Caucasian Peasants in Terror Over Prophecy of New Blood

(By the Associated Press)

TIFLIS, Republic of Georgia.—Professor Fedorov of Petrograd recently announced that the poles have been set in motion and predicted in consequence that the Arctic Ocean would overflow all Europe. This prophecy inspired terror among the peasants of the northern Caucasus which Soviet officials have not been able to allay. There are general pilgrimages to churches, and wholesale preparations are being made for the universal destruction which is believed to be imminent in Europe.

on the early ballots are Senator Robinson, Senator Ralston, Mr. Meredith, Governor Sizler, Mr. Cox, Governor Neff, Senator Glass and Mr. Davis.

Senator Ralston has been the most frequently mentioned "dark horse" candidate and will probably remain in the running until a decision is reached on the nominee. Former Vice President Marshall, has been mentioned as possible alternative candidate from Indiana if the movement of Senator Ralston should not make the progress expected. Governor Neff of Texas is likely to receive the forty votes of Texas on early ballots but it is indicated the Texas votes will ultimately go to Mr. McAdoo. Mr. Meredith is said to be friendly to Mr. McAdoo's candidacy. The friends of John W. Davis expect his strength to grow as the convention progresses. Governor Sizler, Senator Glass and Mr. Cox are expected to start each with the vote of his own state delegation or nearly all of it.

Mr. Cummings, who is supporting Mr. McAdoo, will probably not be placed in nomination at the beginning of the convention, but his friends will await opportunity to put him forward as a candidate. Mayor Dever of Chicago, can be said to be in about the same situation. Senator Reed has beaten in the Missouri County conventions but is expected to have a few delegates from that state. With the exception of Mr. Hearst, for whom there have been recent signs of activity, the others mentioned, including William J. Bryan, and his brother, Charles W. Bryan of Nebraska, can be counted largely in the receptive class.

TRAFFIC OFFICER TELLS INTIMATE DETAILS

Officer Hinkle Says it's Easy To Smile When One's Health Is Good—Gives Tanlac Credit for Recovery

C.D. HINKLE

Few cities can boast of a more wide-awake and efficient traffic officer than Clarence D. Hinkle, 4345 Fleming St., Philadelphia, Pa., who has been a member of the Philadelphia Police Department for ten years and who handles the traffic at Fourth and Market Streets, one of the city's busiest corners.

"It is no easy thing," said Officer Hinkle, recently, "to serve the public with a smile when you are suffering the pangs of indigestion as I have done during the past year. Not only that, my appetite was lagging, I had frequent spells of nervousness and couldn't sleep right, and it kept me on my P's and Q's to look after my duties around the traffic zone."

"But since I have taken Tanlac, my stomach and nerves are strong and normal and I eat, sleep and feel so good that my work is a genuine pleasure."

VIENNA PROFESSOR DIES AT HEAD OF OUTLAW BAND

BELGRADE, March 11.—There is an interesting story behind the recent fight between Serbian troops and a Montenegrin revolutionary band close to the Serbian-Montenegrin border in which about 300 men were killed, including the Montenegrin chief Iovo Raspopovitch. Before he entered the field of Serbian-Montenegrin conflicts, Raspopovitch was a member of the faculty of the University of Vienna, occupying the chair of philosophy with much distinction. Here he moved in the society of scholars and thinkers. He joined the illegal organization of his countrymen about a year ago, and took active part in the operations against the Serbians. He soon was elected chief of a powerful band. The Serbian government put a price of 100,000 dinars on his head.

One of the exploits of Raspopovitch was an attack, with his band, upon a strong military detachment conveying a government treasure bag containing 3,000,000 dinars on the way to Cetinje, the Serbian administrative center in Montenegro.

The former professor of philosophy conducted the operations so well that the entire military escort was killed or captured in the mountains, and the treasure was appropriated by the rebels. It was by a punitive expedition from Belgrade, sent out by the Serbian government to avenge this exploit, that Raspopovitch was killed recently.

Winter Racing Kills 18 Horses

LONDON.—There has been an unprecedented number of fatalities recently in horse racing over hurdles and in steeplechasing, due very largely to the slippery ground after overnight frosts.

During a recent period of 18 days 11 horses were killed while participating in races at various meetings, one being the steeplechase "Southampton" worth $10,000. There were two cases in which horses slipped and broke their necks, one a broken back and others so badly injured they had to be shot. Curiously the jockeys in each case were not injured at all.

Demand for American Goods Grows Steadily in Germany

(By the Associated Press)
BERLIN.—American made products such as typewriters, adding machines, machine tools, automobiles, hardware and similar products are greatly in demand among the German importers, according to reports of the American Chamber of Commerce in Germany.

"In addition to these industrial products, agricultural products are also desired," says the report. "American apples, for example, find a ready market in Germany, and also grain, flour and canned goods in large quantities than imported at present. It is generally hoped in German trade circles that the new commercial treaty between the United States and Germany will remove some of the existing barriers and open the way to a free exchange of merchandise."

The Revolution of 1893

(Address of Melville E. Stone, at Minneapolis, February 15, 1924.)

When, in this country, we speak of the Revolution, of course we refer to the contest which began at Concord Bridge and ended at Yorktown. As a result of that revolution our fathers founded a Republic, based on the principle that all governments should derive their just powers from the consent of the governed. It was admittedly an event of very great importance. Its influence swept back over the seas, inspired the French revolution and in the end broke down one autocracy after another and gave parliamentary sovereignty to many states.

Little more than a century later there was another revolution in our land, which seems to me to have been also of distinct consequence. It was a logical complement of the struggles and the triumph of the embattled farmers of the colonies. Yet, to this second revolution little heed has been paid and few people have any idea of its existence, its purposes or its effect. Permit me to say something of it. While the revolution against George III went to the question of our political system, it was a corollary of the principle of self-government by the people of the country that the people should be informed to the end that they could form intelligent opinion respecting their civic duties. Hence, the obvious demand had been voiced in England two centuries before and on the formation of our Republic after the surrender of Cornwallis, it was made the first clause in the Bill of Rights of our constitution. Yet, strangely enough, we did not achieve a free press for still another century. Government control of the press was universal throughout the world for many centuries and thru the first clause in our Bill of Rights was broken down in this country, but we did not appreciate that private government was no less malign than government control.

As I have said, if it were desirable that the governing populace of our Republic should be intelligent, it was all important that there should be an honest, impartial news service. The gathering and distribution of news, however, had been from the beginning under private control. In a systematic way it began about thirty years after the adoption of our constitution, but amounted to comparatively little until the invention of the telegraph by Professor Morse in the late forties. News was always a commodity to be bought and sold, and even after the invention of the telegraph the limited wires made it impossible to provide fully for the needs of the newspapers. Wherefore, a few of the New York journals organized a little company called The Associated Press gathered substantially all of the foreign news by meeting the incoming steamers in the New York harbor and all of the Washington news by utilizing the telegraph lines. This news they sold to the papers in the hinterland as these papers developed. It was a close corporation.

As time went on the newspapers in the back country increased, small tributary organizations were formed. There were the New England Associated Press, the New York State Associated Press, the Southern Associated Press, the Western Associated Press, the Northwestern Associated Press, and others. In 1892, this central group of few papers in New York passed under the control of three men—one a Chicago banker, another a telegraph operator, and the third a business manager of a New York paper. These men were responsible to no one and were bent only on money making. The menace was obvious. Not only were the newspapers dependent on the caprice or worse of these men, but away beyond that the public was subject to any sort of misinformation. As citizens, therefore, there was a problem far more important for the newspapers than any private interests they might have had. It was a problem which went, as you might see, to the very fundamentals of our form of government.

This was the immediate cause of the revolution of 1893. It began in Chicago. The newspapers served by the Western Associated Press, mindful as well of the public duty as of their private interest, revolted against this sort of control. There followed a struggle of four years' duration. It was a bloodless contest, yet none the less revolutionary. The Western men set out to form a national organization, refusing any arrangement with subordinate associations. It was to be an association that should wrest the whole business from the hands of profiteers and place it in the hands of a purely cooperative organizations—an organization that should sell no news, make no profits, declare no dividends, but should be the agent or joint reporter of its members. It was believed that if the people of the country were capable of self-government, a presentation of the facts would enable them to form their own opinions. Therefore, any attempt to introduce opinions upon any event was forbidden. The Associated Press might tell the story of a robbery, but it was not permitted to say that it was wicked. If there were any departure from this rule, you must see that somebody's opinion would have to be presented, and the question naturally arises whose opinion. And what assurance did the public have that that opinion was a correct one?

It may be said that this policy meant that The Associated Press should see a great wrong and make no effort to prevent it, or that The Associated Press could do nothing to help along a good cause. The answer still remains that given the facts and the assumption that the people should be able to form their own judgment and that if an attempt was made to attach opinion to the statement of fact, owing to the frailties of human nature, it would lead to dangerous errors of judgment, which would be really disastrous. The expression of opinion respecting any facts presented by The Associated Press, is left to the newspapers receiving the service. It is there that it belongs.

There are about 1300 daily newspapers in the organization. They represent every conceivable point of view respecting politics, religion, economics. However prejudiced these members are, they are one in their desire and demand that the organization furnish unbiased news and papers. Wherefore, a few of the New York journals organized a little company called The Associated Press gathered substantially all of the foreign news by meeting the incoming steamers in the New York harbor and all of the Washington news by utilizing the telegraph lines. This news they sold to the papers in the hinterland as these papers developed. It was a close corporation.

This, I believe, was largely the outcome of the revolution of 1893. As a feature of the organization, it was expected and desired that it should be the subject of criticism. It was the intention of those who founded this new association that in the phrase with which John Bright opened one of his great speeches in England, it should enjoy the "great advantage that it would have no want of ample criticism." It was controlled by a Board of Directors elected by the members and through all the years with which I have been associated with it, neither myself nor any other employee would have ever dared to favor or oppose any candidate for seat upon this Board of Directors. I know of no institution that has been so fully self-governed.

To those of us who have been engaged in the work, it seems strange that there should be any ignorance concerning it; any doubt as to either its usefulness or its integrity; or, indeed any such curiosity respecting it as to make it an interesting topic of consideration. All of its activities are carried on in the daylight, under a blazing sun. There are no secrets about it—in fact there can be none. The news which it furnishes to the newspaper membership is furnished in the phrase of Mr. Lincoln, "with malice toward none, with charity for all." Its good name, like that of any man or institution, has been fairly earned. There has been no trick about the business. For over thirty years Directors have come and gone, have lived and died. They have been of every conceivable religious, political and economic affiliation. Yet all of them have borne their part in the effort to make The Associated Press worthy of public confidence as a source and distributor of truthful and unbiased news. Every man who has sat on its Board and has participated in its management can look you full in the face and tell you that there has been a painstaking endeavor to make it honest, impartial and faithful to the trust reposed in it.

And yet in Mr. Bright's words: "There has been no want of ample criticism." Criticism, good, bad and indifferent. Sometimes amusing, sometimes irritating. Intelligent, truthful criticism, which is welcome because it is helpful. Ignorant, but honest, criticism, which is not objectionable, because an explanation is all that is necessary. Malicious and untruthful criticism, which is not hurtful because in the words of the President who died the other day, "the truth will prevail."

Attacks have been freely aimed both at its form of organization and its methods of operation. For instance, it is openly charged by an officer of the Ku Klux Klan that it is controlled by Jewish influence or that it is pro-Vatican in the tendency of its news service. It can hardly be necessary for me to say that I am neither a Jew nor a Catholic. On both my father's and my mother's sides I come from a long line of Methodists. My father was a Methodist minister, as was his brother, the Rev. David Stone, who spent his last years as a member of a Minnesota Conference. And John Wesley, in his day, preached in the barn of my mother's grandfather, Robert Ceighton, in Cavan, Ireland. Read Mr. Wesley's diary and you will see that he says so. And in the picture of Mr. Wesley's deathbed, often found in a Methodist home, the Rev. James Creighton, my great uncle, stands holding the hand of the dying founder of the denomination.

While I trust everyone connected with the organization approves the first article in the Bill of Rights adopted by our forefathers assuring freedom of worship in this country, and while in the past thirty years at least five directors have been elected every year—the Board consisting of fifteen members—it happens that one Jewish gentleman alone is or ever has been a member of the Board. That gentleman is Mr. Adolph S. Ochs of the New York Times, whose standards in journalism must be approved by every right-minded citizen. And as to the Catholic affiliation of members, in all the thirty years, I think it is true that there never have been more than two members of the Catholic church on the Board at any time and not half a dozen altogether. I am making this statement not because anybody that I know of has ever undertaken to determine the religious beliefs of the members of the Board as a ground for judging their qualifications, but as an illustration of the false charges made against the institution.

One Sunday morning in a Methodist church in New York I was asked to speak on The Associated Press. Before I finished, I said I should be pleased to answer any inquiry. A man arose and amazed me by asking what control John D. Rockefeller and J. P. Morgan exercised over The Associated Press. When I replied that neither Mr. Rockefeller nor Mr. Morgan had or had ever had slightest control or connection, direct or indirect, with the organization, he added to my amazement, by the statement that he was a lawyer with an office in Wall Street and that he had always supposed that these two men owned the Associated Press and that he had often told his friends that they did.

On the other hand, on one occasion a Rochester paper failed to publish an Associated Press dispatch respecting an ecumenical council of the Catholic church. A Catholic priest of Rochester wrote me that he supposed because of my Methodist proclivities I had suppressed any account of the meeting. I replied that "our papers" meaning those we served were free to publish or discard any of our dispatches to which the poor gentleman came back with the statement "You say they are your papers. As you own them, why can't you make them print the dispatches?"

As I have said, many of the criticisms are born of ignorance of the facts. For instance, a man reads something in a newspaper and either overlooks the credit line or it may be there is no credit line, and he assumes that it is an Associated Press telegram and at once charges us with the responsibility for it. Of course his charge is unintentionally unjust. Again the accusation has been made respecting the condition of Lenin, the Bolshevik leader, that The Associated Press announced his death half a dozen times before it actually occurred. Well, the fact is that The Associated Press from time to time said the Berlin Tageblatt reported the death of Lenin, or it may be that the Secolo di Milan reported it. In each case the statement of The Associated Press dispatch was not that Lenin was dead, but that somebody said he was dead and that somebody was always given as our authority.

It may also interest you to learn that by actual investigation in the thirty years that have passed, although thousands of words have been sent out daily, and although there are thirteen hundred daily newspapers printing its dispatches, the total cost of lawyer's fees and all other payments incident to libel suits have been less than the cost of the lead pencils used in the service. This must be some proof that accuracy is earnestly sought. I do not pretend that The Associated Press is perfect. Absolute infallibility is impossible. The frailties of human nature attach to its work as they do to others, but this much is certain, that it is not intentionally untruthful.

Moreover, I may say to you that no charge of mismanagement has ever been ignored, so far as I know. I myself have undergone a number of investigations and, as I have said, any attempt to whitewash me by any member of the Board would only arouse my contempt.

W. H. BRENTS ANNOUNCES FOR COM. DISTRICT NO. 3

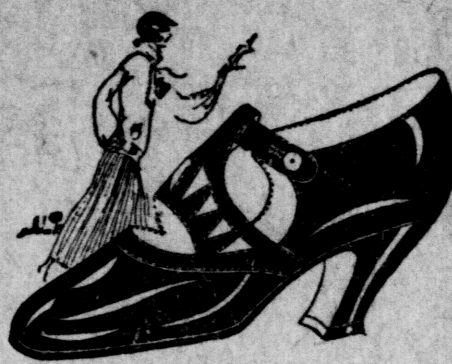

W. H. Brents, who has served two terms as county commissioner from District No. 3 in the past is announcing his candidacy for the office in this issue of The News. Mr. Brents is well known to the voters of his district. Having served two terms he has come to know them and they have learned that he is a conscientious and trustworthy official. He is a successful farmer as well as community builder.

The candidate will make the race on his past record and his knowledge of the county's affairs and the problems that must be faced in highway construction. He believes he knows the condition as well as any man in the county and wants to let the county get the benefit of this knowledge.

He may have more to say from time to time.

ALL NATIONS MARCHING TO ARMAGEDDON

but—"millions now living will never die."

—Judge Rutherford.

The World faces a condition never before experienced. Fear has taken hold upon all classes of people because they see in a measure the things coming upon the earth. The nations are in distress and perplexity.

The War did not make the world safe for democracy. The very foundations of civilization are now shaken by revolution, labor strikes, official lawlessness, profiteers, Bolshevism and anarchy.

Both capital and labor are resorting to extreme measures. The common people have lost confidence in their leaders. The clergy have abandoned the Word of God and joined hands with big business and big politicians in an attempt to control the world, and these are opposed by radical forces.

Europe is completely bankrupt, with her restless host of unemployed and discontents hourly increasing. Belligerent organizations are rapidly numbering their men and taking account of their strength. All contending forces are hastening to the great battle of Armageddon. The disaster resulting is beyond the description of human words. But let the people take heart. The Lord will cut short the trouble, bring order out of chaos, establish peace and righteousness; and millions of people now living will become obedient to his order of righteousness and will live on the earth forever in peace and happiness.
